DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.
- 2. Claims 1, 4 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Torii (JP 2003-015651).

Regarding claims 1 and 4, Torii discloses an electronic apparatus comprising: a casing (5); and a speaker unit (11) located in the casing, the speaker unit including a cabinet (12), a speaker (15) arranged in the cabinet and exposed to the outside of the cabinet, and a port (12a1 or 12a2) which is defined in the cabinet to open the outside of the cabinet and through which a sound emitted from the backside of the speaker into the cabinet is radiated outward from the cabinet, the speaker being exposed to the outside of the casing through an opening defined in an outside wall of the casing, and the port of the speaker unit opening into the casing.

Regarding claim 7, Torii shows that the respective ports thereof oriented in the same direction.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
  - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 4. Claims 3 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Torii in view of Uehara (US006476304B2).

Regarding claims 3 and 9, Torii discloses the keyboard, but fails to show a display unit having a display panel. Torii teaches a general digital piano with an improved sound reproduction through a novel design of the speaker cabinet. One skilled in the art would have expected that the same design could be applied to other digital piano, including the piano with a display unit, such as the one as shown in Uehara. In another way, Torii's piano would be improved if a display unit is utilized to provide some visual feedback for the user. Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Torii in view of Uehara by incorporating a display unit in order to give the user visual indication.

5. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Torii in view of Watanabe et al (hereafter Watanabe) (JP 07-222278).

Regarding claim 5, Torii fails to show that the cabinets having different capacities. Watanabe teaches that the sound would be improved with the cabinets having different sizes. Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Torii in view of Watanabe by having different sized-cabinets in order to improve the low pitch sound.

6. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Torii in view of Freadman (US005550921A).

Regarding claim 6, Torii's abstract fails to show that the ports are opposed to each other. Freadman teaches the claimed feature to improve the bass response.

Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Torii in view of Freadman by arranging the ports to opposed to each other in order to have better bass response.

7. Claims 1-4, 7 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Numano et al (hereafter Numano) (US006744623B2) in view of Markow et al (hereafter Markow)(US006359994B1).

Regarding claims 1-4, 7 and 9, Numano discloses an electronic apparatus with a casing, left and right speaker cabinets protruded, a display and a keyboard. However, Numano fails to show the cabinets having ports. Markow teaches the benefit of having ported speaker cabinet to improve surround sound experience. Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Numano in view of Markow by having ported cabinets in order to improve low frequency response.
